CABA ENTERS INTO COOPERATION AGREEMENT WITH THE KOREA HOME NETWORK INDUSTRY ASSOCIATION

April 16, 2007

The Continental Automated Buildings Association recently entered into a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with the Korea Home Network Industry Association.

The MOU calls for both associations to mutually co-operate in the development of a global connected home marketplace.

According to agreement, CABA will work in strategic partnership with the Korea Home Network Industry Association to collaborate on research and information exchanges that encourage the development of compatible, standardized connected home technologies. The agreement will also promote cooperation and support for international conferences and exhibitions.

“CABA is pleased to have entered into an agreement with an association that represents the most connected country in the world,” states Ronald J. Zimmer, CABA President & CEO. “Our close working relationship will ensure that CABA continues to make in-roads into the Asian-Pacific marketplace.”

CABA ratified the MOU at a special ceremony in Seoul during the 2007 Home Network Global Summit.
